Jericho Project's CEO, Tori Lyon Pens Op-Ed on Effective Housing Solutions

© Annie Leibovitz Photography

Introducing an insightful Op-Ed by Tori Lyon, CEO of Jericho Project. Within these lines, Tori emphasizes the pressing need for impactful housing solutions and the value of proven methods, yielding real results for our city's vulnerable communities. The Op-Ed highlights our pioneering role in introducing lasting, purposeful housing initiatives.

"The influx of migrant people into New York City, not only a humanitarian crisis but also a financial one, has shone an unsparing light on our chronic shortage of affordable housing. As local, state and federal administrations spar over how to shelter incoming migrant people and determine who will pay for it, we must not lose sight of the long-term housing solutions that work, and commit more funding to them for the benefit of all New Yorkers.

The shelter system, swelling above an unfathomable 100,000, has eclipsed its original intent as a temporary stop for individuals and families up to 90 days. Even before the current crisis, many languish there for much longer. The average family stays in shelter for more than 17 months, a single adult more than 16.

In contrast, permanent supportive housing is a proven pathway to stability by providing an individual or family with the dignity of their own lease and comprehensive services to get them back on their feet.

It's important to remember that the experience of homelessness, or even coming very close to it, is traumatic. Getting people housed efficiently and affordably is part of the solution. Ensuring that they can sustain it requires a compassionate and therapeutic approach.

Unfortunately, the process of applying for permanent supportive housing is hampered upon arrival in a shelter by delays in evaluations and documentation. Once a person meets the criteria due to mental health and other challenges, there is typically a long wait, with only one apartment available for every six people who qualify.

Those who do can rent their own apartment for 30% of their income. Case managers are available on site, building trusting relationships and connecting residents to employment counseling, mental and physical health care, and community gatherings. Among the nine such residences that Jericho Project operates - including three built specifically for veterans - 95% of our residents do not return to homelessness.

The challenge is that this kind of long-term solution takes time to plan, fund and build - and it's clear we can't scale it fast enough, but we can get creative. Even in the face of rising rents in New York, we have found other ways to fast-track individuals and families out of shelters and into independent, affordable housing.

"Rapid-rehousing" is a program helping people find and pay for suitable apartments and lay the foundation for them to remain there on their own. As such it is a powerful bridge for families and individuals to exit a shelter - or avoid it altogether. Funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for individuals, young adults and families, and by the VA's Supportive Services for Veteran Families (SSVF) program for veterans, Jericho's strategy is aimed at people who may not need the same level of services as in permanent supportive housing, and can live independently with some financial and service support. By collaborating with a trusted network of landlords, we can move individuals or families who are in shelter or at risk of homelessness into safe, affordable apartments. Starting with a 12-month lease, rapid rehousing can provide financial and counseling support 12-24 months depending on the program.

This gives households time to get their bearings and affords them the professional support to prepare for long-term stability. Clinical therapists help them tackle mental health issues. Counselors coach them to budget and manage finances. Employment specialists build resumes and confidence. Financial assistance with up-front costs for security and rental deposits is a simple and relatively low-cost way to eliminate an overwhelming obstacle.

It takes partnership. We are grateful for our landlords' partnership with us. In turn we pledge to ensure they are financially intact and intercede in any misunderstandings that may arise. After the completion of the program, our counselors stay in touch with residents for six months to help navigate bumps in the road and reinforce success.

Solutions exist. We must not become numb to the inhumanity of homelessness, and we must also not take a nearsighted approach to solving the issue. Instead, we must channel our compassion - and our public and private funding - into proven and time-tested solutions like supportive and rapid rehousing programs that work to end homelessness for good.

Exodus Point/Morgan Stanley Veteran Fitness Fundraiser

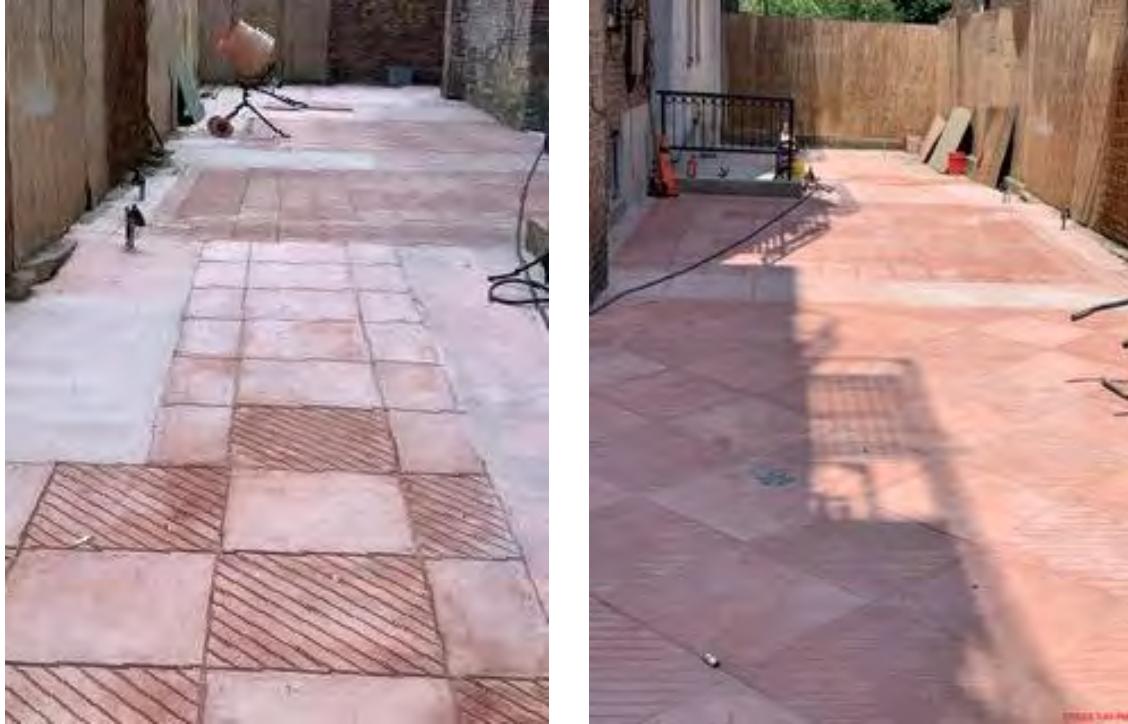

On December 14, Hudson Companies, Jericho Project and HELP USA joined partners and elected officials to break ground on Logan Fountain - a new mixed-use development, supportive and affordable residence and shelter, in East New York. When complete, the eastern wing will create 174 new affordable apartments, including 105 supportive housing units for formerly homeless individuals. On-site services are provided by the Jericho Project and are funded by the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's (NYC DOHMH) NYC 15/15 program. Building amenities include a fitness room, landscaped common courtyard with a children's play area, multiple terraces with a garden area, bicycle storage rooms, and laundry rooms.

Jericho x Beyond the Teams: Honor Paddle

The Beyond the Teams x Jericho Project Honor Paddle that took place from September 8th until September 10th was a HUGE success! This endeavor helped us raise funds for the Jericho Project's Veteran programming, supporting our mission to eliminate Veteran homelessness in NYC. The support of partners like Ernst and Young (EY) and iServe Lending LLC, alongside Beyond the Teams, highlights the collective commitment to this cause.

1840 Anthony Avenue Update

At 1840 Anthony Avenue, significant progress has been made on the rear-yard garden. We're excited to share that the stamped concrete work has been successfully poured (please refer to the attached pictures for visuals). While there's more to come in the upcoming phases, including landscaping, installing planter beds, capstones, and exterior planting bed lighting, this initial step marks an important milestone. At present, the focus of this project is on obtaining the partial Temporary Certificate of Occupancy (TCO) paperwork. Progress on receiving the TCO is contingent upon ConEd's completion of street work, particularly the conduit installation. This step is vital to proceed with the installation of gas and electric meters.

The attainment of electricity will enable us to move forward with scheduling the Fire Department of New York (FDNY) fire alarm inspection, which stands as the final step before obtaining necessary sign-offs. We appreciate your continued support and patience as the team works diligently to bring this project to fruition. Stay tuned for further updates!

Back to School Event

On August 16th, Supplies for Success generously donated over 100 backpacks filled with school supplies to our FSS families. The event featured grilled food, games, arts and crafts, a bouncy house, and activities led by a clown, creating a joyful atmosphere for the children. We extend our heartfelt gratitude to Janinne Gonzalez and Jonathan Castro for leading the event, and to all volunteers, including the Russell Investment Volunteers, for their instrumental support. Special appreciation goes to the Associate Board, whose contributions helped provide backpacks for our high school students. Your collective efforts were indispensable - thank you all!

Recent Grants Awarded to Jericho Project

Con Edison Grant

Jericho Project received a grant of $10,000 from Con Edison. This valuable grant has been awarded in support of Jericho's Veteran Employment Program. With this grant, we are empowered to continue making meaningful strides in improving the lives of veterans through sustainable employment opportunities.

HUD - Unsheltered Homeless Grant

Jericho Project received a grant of $277,550 from the City Council Discretionary Funding Award. This grant will support Jericho's Veterans Initiative, aiming to connect low-income and at-risk Veterans experiencing homelessness with essential resources in New York City. The initiative aims to support Veterans in transitioning to civilian life after the military by providing a range of services, including housing, case management, employment and education support, healthcare coordination, mental health counseling, financial assistance, and help obtaining their DD-214 separation document and other VA benefits. We are very excited to continue our efforts in supporting the Veterans in our program, and thanks to this award, we are one step closer to eradicating homelessness in New York City

Marine Terrace x Horticultural Therapy

On June 13th, Jericho's Horticultural Therapy Program partnered with Related Gardens for a collaborative event at the Marine Terrace residence in Astoria. The event brought together staff and tenants who constructed and installed planters, and planted flowerbeds. Participants had the opportunity to witness the joyful ambiance that arises when connecting with nature. This event highlighted the positive impact of horticultural therapy in fostering well-being and creating a thriving community space.

Juneteenth

On Friday, June 16th, Jericho staff came together for our annual Juneteenth Day of Service. Held for a third consecutive year, our Day of Service highlighted our commitment to unity and the pursuit of freedom, equality, and social justice. Five diverse groups engaged in impactful volunteer work, making a tangible difference in the lives of those in need.

Led by Giovanni Plaia, one group supported Animal Haven, a non-profit animal rescue organization, dedicated their time to care for rescued animals with compassion and love. Under Chantel Germain's guidance, another group volunteered at a local food pantry, ensuring individuals and families facing food insecurity had access to nourishing meals, bringing hope to those in need. A'Chane Hood-Ziegler led a group that visited Best Friend's, a sanctuary for animals seeking forever homes. David Towler's group collaborated with Habitat for Humanity, building homes and creating a foundation of hope for families in need of stability. Lastly, Tori's group created care packages for those facing challenging circumstances, offering essential items and support to individuals in need.

The collective efforts on this extraordinary Day of Service embodied the spirit of Juneteenth, recognizing our shared history while working towards a brighter future. We express deep gratitude to all the volunteers whose commitment and compassion made this day a resounding success. Together, we have made a difference. Let us carry this spirit forward and continue to uplift and support one another in our journey towards freedom, equality, and social justice!

Morgan Stanley's Veteran Employee Network Group (VENG) Volunteers at Walton House

Longtime corporate partner, Morgan Stanley, highlighted their commitment to making a positive impact in our community by joining us at our Walton House residence. At Walton House, VENG volunteered their time and expertise to assemble furniture, apply a fresh coat of paint on the walls, and completely transform the recreational room. We are immensely grateful for the partnership we have established with Morgan Stanley, their unwavering support exemplifies the true spirit of corporate responsibility and inspires others to make a difference in their communities.

JPAB Introduces New Leadership

New Leadership: We are delighted to announce that Laura Palantone has been appointed as the new President of the Jericho Project Associate Board (JPAB)! Laura's passion for our mission, dedication to community empowerment, and exemplary leadership makes her the perfect fit for this role. Join us in welcoming Laura as she embarks on this exciting journey of leading the JPAB to new heights!

In addition to Laura's appointment, we are happy to introduce Blake Garcia as the new JPAB Vice President, Marina Irony as the Volunteer Chair, and Caroline Davidson as the Membership and Recruitment Chair. Their diverse expertise and unwavering commitment to our cause will undoubtedly strengthen our efforts to make a lasting difference in the lives of those experiencing homelessness.

Recruitment: JPAB plays a vital role in supporting Jericho Project's mission to combat homelessness and provide transformative solutions for individuals and families in need. Comprised of a dynamic group of young professionals and emerging leaders, JPAB assists in raising awareness, organizing events, and generating resources to further Jericho's impactful work. As a member of JPAB, folks will have the chance to engage in various activities, such as organizing fundraising events, volunteering at Jericho Project programs, and advocating for policies that address homelessness. By joining forces with like-minded individuals, you will be part of a supportive network dedicated to effecting positive change in our community.

If you know of someone who may be interested in JPAB, please encourage them to visit our website at www.jerichoproject.org/jpab or reach out to JPAB's Recruitment and Membership Chair, Caroline Davidson, at carolinejdavidson1@gmail.com.
